I have had two mechanics tell me how damaging the chemicals are to my vehicles. I own a truck that had to have a $600 power steering unit replaced and the mechanic told me it had just rusted out. The truck is only 10 years old. I also had to have the undercarriage of my truck coated by a Toyota dealer who told me the same thing about the chemicals causing the corrosion. My Honda van had to have all the brake backing plates replaced and that mechanic told me the same story about how many vehicles he sees that are just rusting away. I would suggest you speak with mechanics who see hundreds of cars every day. Go back to the old sand & salt that we used to use!
